Benton Township cidery is fully licensed, ready to open in March out of old carriage house

BENTON TOWNSHIP — Paula Camp wants people to know that it's never too early or too late to dream big and be who you really are.

"If there's a message this cider represents, it's that," she said this week.

After years of work, decades of dreaming, and some bumps and transitions along the way, a new brand of locally handmade ciders will be available to the public, beginning in March.

Carriage House Ciders has finally been licensed to produce and sell hard apple cider out of a historic 134-year-old carriage house along North Shore Drive in Benton Township.

"I've renovated several old homes, but nothing like this," Camp said. "How long something would take, took three or four times longer. Everything that I thought would cost a certain amount, cost three or four times more. And that's with me, my partner and my friends doing a ton of the work."

Camp, 71, has been making cider for decades, since a French chef introduced her to a sparkling apple cider while she was working as a food writer and editor in New York City.

Paula Camp, of Benton Township, hopes to soon market and sell several varieties of her Carriage House Ciders.

The small batches she made only used to be given out to friends and family, but now Camp is looking forward to sharing her cider with the community.

The cider made at Carriage House Ciders are made entirely of Southwest Michigan apples and will be made with a bigger variety of apples than most cideries use.

The apples are pressed and put into oak barrels, aged, then bottled.

Camp said the cider won't be as sweet as more mainstream hard apple ciders, but will seem more like wine or Champagne.

"They're as natural as you can get. There's no added sulfites. There's no added yeast. The yeast comes from the apples themselves, reacts with the carbon dioxide and naturally carbonates it," she said.

As the cider ages in the barrels, Camp draws the cider out once a day to test the sugar, to see how fast it's fermenting; the temperature, to see if the temperature needs to be higher than the room temperature; and the taste, to see if there's anything funky going on, she said.

"I say this is hand-crafted. What I mean is, we look at every apple twice," she said. "Once when we're taking it out of the crate, and again when it comes out of the water bath to clean it. If there's something even remotely suspect, we cut it out."

She said it's more of a labor of love, rather than mass producing cider to sell.

"It's not about making money, it's about accomplishing something," Camp said.

McConnell seeks to push impeachment trial to February

By MARY CLARE JALONICK and LISA MASCARO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell is proposing to push back the start of Donald Trump's impeachment trial by a week or more to give the former president time to review the case.

House Democrats who voted to impeach Trump last week for inciting the Jan. 6 Capitol riots have signaled they want a quick trial as President Joe Biden begins his term, saying a full reckoning is necessary before the country – and the Congress – can move on.

But McConnell told his fellow GOP senators on a call Thursday that a short delay would give Trump time to prepare and stand up his legal team, ensuring due process.

Indiana Sen. Mike Braun said after the call that the trial might not begin "until sometime mid February." He said that was "due to the fact that the process as it occurred in the House evolved so quickly, and that it is not in line with the time you need to prepare for a defense in a Senate trial."

The timing will be set by House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, who can trigger the start of the trial when she sends the House charges for "incitement of insurrection" to the Senate, and also by McConnell and new Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer, who are in negotiations over how to set up a 50-50 partisan divide in the Senate and the short-term agenda.

Schumer is in charge of the Senate, assuming the majority leader post after Democrats won two new Senate seats in Georgia and Vice President Kamala Harris was sworn in Wednesday. But with such a narrow divide, Republicans will have some say over the trial's procedure.

Democrats are hoping to conduct the proceedings while also passing legislation that is a priority for Biden, including coronavirus relief, but they would

Michigan Works, local employers secure $1.98M grant

Funds can be used for job training

By HP STAFF

BENTON HARBOR — Michigan Works Berrien, Cass, Van Buren has received a $1.98 million competitive grant from the state's Going PRO Talent Fund to help 55 area employers enhance their workforce.

The Going PRO Talent Fund allows employers to apply for funds to train new and existing employees.

There are several training programs eligible for funding, including classroom training – which prepares individuals with the skill set required to meet their employer's needs and diversify the knowledge of current employees.

In addition, employers can get onsite job training reimbursement for wages paid while training a new or existing employee on a new process. Apprenticeships are also supported through Going PRO funds.

"Going PRO is helpful to our local employers on a normal year, but these dollars will be even more critical this year to keep our employers competitive and growing," Lily Brewer, executive director of Michigan Works Berrien, Cass, Van Buren, said in a news release. "The funding supplements the costs for more than 550 new workers, incumbent workers and apprentices to upgrade their skills in manufacturing, health care and hospitality-related trainings, allowing our high-demand industries to flourish despite the challenges of 2020."

Michigan Works will work with training providers, such as the Michigan Manufacturing Technology Center, Lake Michigan College, Kalamazoo Valley Community College and Southwestern Michigan College, to deliver the training resulting from the grants.

One of the 55 companies to submit a grant application was the YMCA of Greater Michiana, which is happy to accept the grant.

Zechariah Hoyt, executive director of youth programs at YMCA of Greater Michiana, said the funds couldn't have come at a better time.

"We knew last year was going to be unlike any other, but we had no idea how limited it would make us in terms of training for 2021," Hoyt said in the release. "We are excited to partner with Michigan Works to train and upskill our team so that we meet our customer needs in the coming months."

In 2019, 45 companies in Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties were awarded funds to hire and train 1,907 employees.

There were 90 different training providers conducting 392 trainings with this funding.

Berrien, Cass and Van Buren was the third-highest awarded region in the state, with $2.1 million funds. The average amount of money awarded to regional employers was $46,800.

Michigan Works has additional resources to help existing companies develop trainings, support growth and hiring needs and retain employees.

Additional grants may become available throughout the year. For more information, contact Paul Brohman at 1-800-285-WORKS ext. 1114, or BrohmanP@miworks.org.

Grand Traverse official flashes gun in online meeting

By SLONE TERRANELLA
Detroit Free Press (TNS)

TRAVERSE CITY — A Grand Traverse County commissioner flashed a rifle during a virtual public meeting on Wednesday after a resident expressed her concern with the Proud Boys and northern Michigan gun culture.

During the meeting's public comment period, East Bay Township resident Keli MacIntosh spoke about Grand Traverse County as being a Second Amendment "sanctuary" and her worry about the encouragement of violence, citing the insurrection of the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6 as an example.

As she spoke, Ron Clous, vice chair for the board of commissioners, briefly got up from his seat and plopped back down, while holding a black rifle across his chest.

Clous quickly flashed the gun and set it down without saying anything.

Commission Chair Rob Hentschel can be seen laughing at Clous' actions as MacIntosh expressed her concerns and asked the commissioners to denounce the Proud Boys' behavior and violence.

Clous told the Record-Eagle in Traverse City that he showed off his gun after MacIntosh asked the group to condemn the Proud Boys.

"The only thing I know about them (Proud Boys) is when they came and spoke to us," Clous said

Can COVID-19 vaccines be mixed and matched?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Can COVID-19 vaccines be mixed and matched?

Health officials say both doses should be of the same vaccine.

The COVID-19 vaccines rolling out in the United States, the United Kingdom and other parts of the world so far require two shots given a few weeks apart.

In the U.S. where Pfizer and Moderna vaccines are being distributed, health officials say the vaccines are not interchangeable. In England where shots by Pfizer and AstraZeneca are available, officials also say the doses should be consistent.

But in the rare event that the same kind isn't available or if it's not known what was given for the first shot, English officials say it's OK to give whichever vaccine is available for the second shot. Since the Pfizer and AstraZeneca vaccines focus on the spike protein that coats the coronavirus, they say a mismatched dose is better than partial protection.

But without any studies, vaccine doses should not be mixed, said Naor Bar-Zeev, a vaccine expert at Johns Hopkins University.

If people do happen to get a different vaccine for their second shot by accident, Bar-Zeev said it is likely "to work fine and likely to be well tolerated," but evidence is needed to be sure.

Biden halts border wall building after Trump's final surge

By ELLIOT SPAGAT
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — In the days before Joe Biden became president, construction crews worked quickly to finish Donald Trump's wall at an iconic cross-border park overlooking the Pacific Ocean, which then-first lady Pat Nixon inaugurated in 1971 as symbol of international friendship.

Biden on Wednesday ordered a "pause" on all wall construction within a week, one of 17 executive orders issued on his first day in office, including six dealing with immigration.

The order leaves projects throughout the border unfinished – but still under contract – after Trump worked feverishly last year to build 450 miles, a goal he said he achieved eight days before leaving office.

The Trump administration said it had identified $15 billion to reach a total of 738 miles, but it is unclear how many of those additional miles are under contract and what cancellation fees Biden would face to fulfill his pledge to not build "another foot." Biden ordered answers within two months on how much the government committed, how much it would cost to extricate itself and whether contracts could be repurposed for other uses.

The White House had no immediate comment Thursday, but given the lack of communication between Trump aides and Biden's transition team, quick answers may prove elusive.

"It is remarkably opaque," said Dror Ladin, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union who's scheduled to argue before the U.S. Supreme Court next month that it was illegal for Trump to divert billions of dollars from the Defense Department to build the wall.

Gregory Bull / AP

A man looks through the first wall at Friendship Park, near where the border separating Tijuana, Mexico, and San Diego meets the Pacific Ocean, Tuesday, in Tijuana, Mexico.

John Kurc, an activist who posts videos of dynamite blasts by wall construction crews, said he saw one dynamite charge being set Wednesday afternoon in Guadalupe Canyon in easternmost Arizona, even as the inauguration was playing out in Washington.

Heavy machines have been crawling over roadways gouged into rocky mountainsides, tapping open holes for posts on U.S. Bureau of Land Management property.

In Texas' Rio Grande Valley, the busiest area for illegal crossings, advocates for the Texas Civil Rights Project saw idle trucks and construction equipment Thursday, though rain may explain the lack of activity.

In San Diego, crews were out Thursday replacing a steel fence with imposing, tightly spaced poles topped with flat steel plates rising 30 feet, said Dan Watman of Friends of Friendship Park, a group that promotes public access to the cross-border park overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Contractors began last week, said Watman, who was informed of the project in a December conference call with Border Patrol agents but got no explanation for it. The agency referred questions to the White House.

Trump said the border wall would be "virtually impenetrable" and paid for by Mexico, which never happened. While the wall is much more formidable than the barriers it replaced, it isn't uncommon for smugglers to guide people over or through it. Portions can be sawed with power tools sold at home improvement stores.

Despite Trump's bravado, Border Patrol officials have said the wall was never meant to stop everyone but rather to slow their advance.

Jose Edgar Zuleta, whose business selling religious jewelry in the Mexican city of Puebla dried up during the coronavirus pandemic, cleared two walls in Friendship Park in October with a special ladder. He moved through brush in a heavily patrolled area for about half an hour before getting caught. His 21-year-old son, who went ahead of him, got picked up hours later.

Zuleta agreed to pay smugglers $19,000 for him and his son but only if they made it to the U.S., where they hoped to work as landscapers in Southern California. He returned home to his wife and mother and may try again.

The cross-border park has hosted yoga classes, concerts and countless news conferences, including one in 2018 with then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions to announce a "zero tolerance" policy that caused thousands of children to be separated from their parents at the border.

An old bullfighting ring and ocean-view restaurants surround the Mexican side; wetland scrub stretches into the United States.

Years ago, people passed baked goods, kissed and shook hands through a chain-link fence. Watman remembers passing tools back and forth in 2007 to plant a cross-border garden that still stands.

Since 2012, after construction of a double wall at the park, the Border Patrol has opened a gate many weekends for up to 10 people at a time to exchange words with those in Mexico.

The latest sprint of construction there is part of a $101 million contract to SLSCO Ltd. to build 14 miles in San Diego with Homeland Security appropriations.

SLSCO, based in Galveston, Texas, didn't immediately respond to a request for comment Thursday.

At issue before the Supreme Court on Feb. 22 is billions of dollars that plaintiffs say was wrongly transferred from the Defense Department after Congress denied the money that Trump sought, triggering a 35-day government shutdown in 2017.

It is unclear if Biden will adopt Trump's position before the Supreme Court. The government's brief is due Feb. 11.

Mexican President Andrés Manuel López Obrador welcomed Biden's decision to stop wall construction but, in defense of Trump, noted that U.S. presidents going back to 1990s built border barriers. He displayed a chart to prove his point.

TRIAL

need some cooperation from Senate Republicans to do that, as well.

Schumer told reporters Thursday that he was still negotiating with McConnell on how to conduct the trial, "but make no mistake about it. There will be a trial, there will be a vote, up or down or whether to convict the president."

Pelosi could send the article to the Senate as soon as Friday. Democrats say the proceedings should move quickly because they were all witnesses to the siege, many of them fleeing for safety as the rioters descended on the Capitol.

"It will be soon, I don't think it will be long, but we must do it," Pelosi said Thursday. She said Trump doesn't deserve a "get out of jail card" in his historic second impeachment just because he has left office and Biden and others are calling for national unity.

Without the White House counsel's office to defend him – as it did in his first trial last year – Trump's allies have been searching for lawyers to argue the now-former president's case. Members of his past legal teams have indicated they do not plan to join the effort, but South Carolina Sen. Lindsey Graham told GOP colleagues on Thursday that Trump was hiring South Carolina attorney Butch Bowers, according to a person familiar with the call who was granted anonymity to discuss it. Bowers didn't immediately respond to a message Thursday.

Prosecuting the House case will be Pelosi's nine impeachment managers, who have been regularly meeting to discuss strategy. Pelosi said she would talk to them "in the next few days" about when the Senate might be ready for a trial, indicating the decision could stretch into next week.

COVID-19 vaccine demand far outpacing supply

By ALEXANDRA NEWMAN
HP Staff Writer

BENTON TOWNSHIP — Berrien County health officials said Thursday that demand for the COVID-19 vaccine is still far outpacing supply.

As of Thursday, more than 7,000 vaccinations have been given to Berrien County health care workers, emergency medical and first responders, and long-term care residents, as well as those who are at highest-risk for severe COVID-19 illness due to risk factors, such as age or exposure due to occupation.

"The Berrien County Health Department (BCHD) and Spectrum Health Lakeland continue to provide COVID-19 vaccinations to those who are eligible and interested as quickly as possible. Aligning with state benchmarks, the collective goal is to distribute at least 90 percent of the vaccines allocated within seven days of receipt," the hospital and health department wrote in a joint news release.

Both plan to further expand capacity to operate multiple large-scale vaccination clinics each week, as vaccine supply allows.

To date, more than 19,000 older adults have expressed interest in being vaccinated, according to BCHD and Spectrum Health Lakeland vaccine surveys.

"While it is encouraging to see so many eager individuals who are ready to be vaccinated, the demand for the vaccine is far outpacing the supply coming into Berrien County," Nicki Britten, health officer for the BCHD, said in the release. "Vaccine allocations are unpredictable; recently the total number of vaccines delivered to Berrien County ranges between 1,000 to 2,500 doses a week. At the rate that vaccines are being allocated, it will take time to move through all those who are eligible and interested in getting the vaccine."

Planning is underway to provide vaccinations to additional groups who are now eligible in Michigan, including childcare providers and pre-K through high school staff, within the next few weeks. Other essential workers not currently eligible, as well as people between the ages of 16 and 64 with health conditions that puts them at higher risk for serious COVID-19 complications, can expect to receive vaccinations by late-spring or early-summer.

"Spectrum Health Lakeland and the health department are asking for continued patience as planning is ongoing and appointment availability continues to expand," officials wrote.

Vaccine clinics remain available by appointment-only at this time.

The most efficient way to indicate interest in receiving a COVID-19 vaccination appointment is to complete the pre-registration wait list available on the BCHD website (for those over the age of 65 and employers of essential workers) or complete the survey available via Lakeland MyChart located under "questionnaires" in the My Record section.

These lists will be used as the primary means of confirming eligibility and notifying residents when they can schedule a vaccination.

Individuals on these wait-lists will not receive a "confirmation" email or notification of their status on the list, but rather must wait until either organization has vaccine availability to schedule them for an appointment. Completing either survey does not mean individuals will be scheduled for an appointment immediately;

Upton carves out role on House Energy Subcommittee

By TONY WITTKOWSKI
HP Staff Writer

ST. JOSEPH — U.S. Rep. Fred Upton was named the House Energy Subcommittee's Republican leader on Thursday.

The announcement was made after Energy and Commerce Republican Leader Cathy McMorris Rodgers named the St. Joseph congressman to the post.

UPTON

Upton said in a statement that he intends to prioritize energy policies that focus on job creation in Michigan's auto and manufacturing industries, and supports a "clean energy economy."

"There are other significant challenges facing our country that I expect will be before us in the 117th Congress. We need to tackle climate change without stunting economic growth," Upton wrote in his statement. "We need to secure our electrical grid and prevent cyberattacks from our foreign adversaries. We must ensure we have the infrastructure necessary to fortify this new era of American energy independence. We must keep energy prices low as small businesses look to recover from the COVID-19 pandemic. We must examine the impact of COVID-19 on our energy sector. And lastly, this committee will play a critical role in bolstering Michigan's and our nation's auto industry as we continue to move toward cleaner, safer, smarter vehicles."

The appointment will be nothing new for Upton, who joined the House Energy and Commerce Committee in 1991. Upton later chaired the committee for several years when Republicans were in the House majority.

The committee holds jurisdiction over matters concerning energy, health care, the environment, telecommunications, commerce, manufacturing and trade, as well as oversight and investigations.

"These are bold challenges, that's for certain," Upton stated. "But our subcommittee will continue to govern in a bipartisan fashion, as has become tradition with the Energy and Commerce Committee as a whole. We look forward to working with our Democratic partners and the new administration to create jobs, preserve our environment, and protect the well-being of the American people."

Upton, 67, was first elected in 1986. He was re-elected to an 18th consecutive term in November.

Covert man faces multiple drug, weapons charges

By HP STAFF

COVERT — A 24-year-old Covert man with three outstanding warrants for selling LSD could be facing even more drug charges.

The charges stem from an investigation conducted by detectives from the Van Buren County Sheriff's Department and South Haven Police Department in response to reports of LSD being sold at a home in the 45000 block of 72nd Street.

Detectives were aware the homeowner had multiple warrants for his arrest. On Wednesday, detectives, along with a K9 deputy, knocked on the man's door at 7:30 p.m. and asked him to come to the door. Police saw the man in the home, but he did not come outside. Because the man had three outstanding warrants, investigators entered into the home and told him to come outside. Police say the man ran at detectives and tried to assault them but was subdued in the home. Detectives then obtained a search warrant of the house.

In the suspect's bedroom police say they found more than 100 tabs of LSD along with a large amount of psilocybin mushrooms and several amphetamine pills. In addition they found an AK-47 rifle, an AR-15-style assault rifle and a sawed off shotgun. Several other shotguns and hunting rifles were also found in the home.

The suspect was arrested and taken to Van Buren County Jail for the outstanding warrants. Once the investigation into the drugs and weapons found in the home is complete, a report will be filed with the Van Buren County Prosecutor.

Police say various drugs and weapons were found Wednesday in the home of a 24-year-old Covert man wanted on outstanding warrants for the sale of LSD.

IN BRIEF

One injured in Dowagiac crash

DOWAGIAC — One person was injured in a three-vehicle crash Wednesday near Dowagiac.

Lashell Phipps, 25, of Cassopolis, was taken by Pride Care ambulance to Borgess Lee Memorial Hospital following the 5:20 p.m.accident, according to the Cass County Sheriff's Office.

It happened at the intersection of Pokagon Highway and Wilbur Hill Road in Cass County's Pokagon Township.

Police said Nicholas Baker, 22, of Dowagiac, was traveling east on Pokagon Highway when he failed to stop in an assured clear distance and struck a vehicle driven by Rebekah Jones, 38, of Dowagiac, who was stopped waiting for a third vehicle to turn onto Wilbur Hill Road.

Baker's vehicle then struck that vehicle, driven by Phipps, police said.

Assisting at the scene was the Central Cass Fire Department.

No release yet of Shoreham's forensic audit

By LOUISE WREGE
HP Staff Writer

SHOREHAM — Shoreham President Reneta Mais said it's going to take some time before a report can be released regarding a forensic audit conducted last year looking into alleged financial mismanagement by the previous president and his wife, the clerk.

During Wednesday's village meeting, Mais said a draft copy of the forensic audit, which the village received in December, is being scrutinized by herself and the village's treasurer and attorney.

Mais ran against former President Bruno Trapikas and won in November. His wife, Debra Trapikas, resigned as clerk shortly after the election.

After the meeting, Mais said the document may have to be rewritten.

"I'm not happy with it. There are errors in it," she said. "And that's all I can say. ... There are things that need to be corrected."

Trustees voted last summer to have the forensic audit done due to the village's finances being controlled by the Bruno and Debra Trapikas. There was no treasurer during much of the time the couple was in charge, with Bruno Trapikas acting as treasurer when there wasn't one.

During Wednesday's meeting, Mais said she is asking for a detailed invoice from the firm that conducted the audit, Plante Moran. Trustees approved paying the company up to $15,000 for the document.

Trapikas allegedly refused to turn over all of the financial information requested by the firm, driving up the cost of the process. Mais said she wants to find out how much money the alleged stalling cost the village.

Mais thanked board trustees for standing by her last year and trusting the information she was giving to them. If she doesn't know something, she said she takes the time to look it up.

"You trusted me because you know I would not say something unless I had done my homework," she said.

DEPUTY RESCUES DOG

Cass County Sheriff Richard J Behnke reports that a dog was rescued Wednesday by Deputy Taryn Shields. According to a news release, the dog had fallen through the ice on a pond in Penn Township on White Temple Road. When police responded to a 911 call, they found the dog struggling to stay afloat in the icy water, and Shields was able to rescue the dog, though she also fell through the ice in making the rescue. However, she was able to get herself and the dog safely back to shore.

SJPS announces 2021 SJHS art award winners

ST. JOSEPH — St. Joseph Public Schools has announced the results of the 2021 St. Joseph High School Regional Scholastic Art Awards.

SJHS received 40 awards this year – a 40 percent acceptance into the show, according to a news release.

"Our participation in this regional art competition shows not only the high level of competence and talent our teachers and students exhibit, but also the point that even during the pandemic, our students are competing and attaining high expectations," Superintendent Thomas Bruce said in the release. "I am very proud of our staff and students, especially during these trying times."

Awards are given in several categories:

■ Gold Key: The highest level of achievement on the regional level. Approximately 7-10 percent of all regional submissions are recognized with Gold Key Awards, and all are considered for national-level recognition.

■ Silver Key: About 10-15 percent of all submissions are recognized with Silver Keys.

■ Honorable Mention: This award recognizes students with artistic potential. About 15-20 percent of all submissions receive Honorable Mentions.

■ American Vision & Voice Nominees: Five works are selected from the Gold Key works (across categories) as the "Best of Show" for each region.

Lillian Broderick, a 10th grader, received a Gold Key for her digital drawing, "His Song."

Digital images of all Gold Key Awards are sent for national adjudication in New York City. National winners are invited to participate in a ceremony at Carnegie Hall, have their work shown in noted galleries, attend workshops, be considered for scholarships and have their names included in a New York Times article covering the Scholastic Art & Writing Awards.

The following students were honored for their work:

■ St. Joseph High School: Samuel Adkins – Gold Key, Silver Key (2), Honorable Mention; Esther Bard – Gold Key (2), Silver Key; Lillian Broderick – Gold Key; Alexander Duell – Gold Key, Honorable Mention; Hayden Flynn – Honorable Mention; Mason Gedert – Honorable Mention; Grace LaFayette – Gold Key (2); Grace Mollison – Silver Key; Luke Moyer – Honorable Mention; Jade Murdoch – Silver Key; Victoria Peddie – Silver Key; Ruby Rappette – Gold Key, Silver Key; Livinia Rosenthal – Gold Key; Eliot Schlaack – Silver Key, Honorable Mention; Claudia Shagen – Honorable Mention; Emily Watson – Gold Key, Silver Key; and Adeline Wilkes – Silver Key.

Jade Murdoch, a ninth grader, received a Silver Key for her marker illustration, "Colorful Character."

■ St. Joseph High School CTE (Career and Technical Education): Emma Bitzer – Silver Key; Nick Cetrone – Gold Key; Bridget Confer – Honorable Mention; Sophia Confer – Gold Key, Silver Key; Sam Ebbert – Silver Key; Daniel Gonzales – Honorable Mention; Taylor Hartley – Silver Key, Honorable Mention; Nash Kent – Honorable Mention; Grace LaFayette – Honorable Mention; Ivan Moreno – Silver Key, Honorable Mention.

IN BRIEF

Feature added to Masons exhibit

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The History Center at Courthouse Square, 313 N. Cass St., has added events to its current exhibit, "Historic Rituals: The Freemasons of Berrien County."

The exhibit, which is on display through March 7 at the Sheriff's Residence, is free to view.

Now, from 2-4 p.m. Thursdays during the exhibit, a Berrien County Mason will be on hand to answer questions and lead guided tours.

Partners in the exhibit include a number of Masonic lodges – St. Joseph Valley 4 (Niles), Buchanan 68, Coloma 162, Three Oaks 239, Lakeshore 298 (Benton Harbor) and St. Joseph 437 – and the Michigan Masonic Museum.

The exhibit looks at the history of Berrien County's Freemasons – from grand masters to fish frys. Guests can explore a range of artifacts, photos and more – some on display for the first time.

For more info, call 471-1202 or visit berrienhistory.org.

Talk to tell the story of Adventists

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The History Center at Courthouse Square's Sunday Afternoons at the Courthouses Talks series returns next week with "American Faith – The Story of the Seventh-day Adventists."

Erhard Gallos, an assistant professor at Andrews University, will lead the Zoom talk at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. To watch the free event, visit bit.ly/3nl16oD.

The "American Faith" series will explore four religious sects that have roots in America, and how our country's exceptionalist attitude played a role in their development and success.

Gallos will dive deep into the story of Seventh-day Adventism, from the roots in the Millerite movement to one of the largest Christian denominations in the world.

Gallos teaches ethics, Seventh-day Adventist heritage, Greek and New Testament courses, among others, at Andrews. Originally from Germany, he served as a pastor for six years before coming to Andrews.

Krasl receives $24,000 grant

ST. JOSEPH — The Krasl Art Center reopened to the public last weekend – and will remain open from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Fridays through Mondays – with a new look thanks to a grant from the Michigan Council for Arts & Cultural Affairs (MCACA).

The $24,000 grant was awarded through the MCACA peer-review process, and was one of 597 applications to compete for 2021 funding, according to a news release. This grant will support Krasl's general operations.

Organizations receiving a grant are required to match those funds with public and private dollars. KAC's matching dollars include individual donations and corporate sponsorships.

The MCACA peer-review process allows for each application to be competitively considered by a panel of arts and culture professionals. This ensures the taxpayers, who support the project through legislative appropriations, and all other visitors or residents in Michigan will have access to the highest quality arts and cultural experiences.

A complete list of grant awards is available by visiting www.michigan.gov/arts.

For more info about the Krasl, visit krasl.org.

Museum sets lineup for lecture series

ST. JOSEPH — The Heritage Museum and Cultural Center has announced its Winter Lecture Series.

At 6:30 p.m. Feb. 24, Morris Thomas, a professor of geography, environment and spatial sciences at Michigan State University, will present "Idlewild: A Special Place for African Americans."

Established in 1912, Idlewild welcomed African Americans with no restrictions at a time when segregation was rampant. The small town eventually became one of the most popular African American resorts in the Midwest. It offered rest, relaxation and a respite from racism.

At 6:30 p.m. March 10, George Maniates, an instructor of history at Muskegon Community College, will present "West Michigan Pike: Road from the Metropolis to the Beaches."

The West Michigan Pike (U.S. 31) celebrates its 100th anniversary as one of the country's first highways and later an interstate. It served as a conduit to spur development and tourism in western Michigan. It transformed cities and towns along its route, including Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, South Haven, Holland and Muskegon.

At 6:30 p.m. April 14, Michael Nassaney, principal investigator of the Fort St. Joseph Archaeological Project, will present "How to Find a Lost French Fort (and What to Do With It Once You Do)."

When Fort St. Joseph was discovered by Western Michigan University archaeologists in 1998, they had no idea the site would consume their efforts for more than two decades. Archaeological investigations, interpretations and public involvement demonstrate that the site contains important information of broad interest to students, professionals and history enthusiasts alike.

All three lectures will be held via Zoom at bit.ly/2XWiMN0.

Notre Dame football on probation, faces recruiting limits for violations

SOUTH BEND (AP) — Notre Dame's football program is on NCAA probation until next January after admitting to recruiting violations in 2019 in which a now-former assistant had an impermissible in-person meeting with one prospect and sent impermissible text messages to another.

The NCAA announced the negotiated resolution Thursday after it was reviewed by the Division I Committee on Infractions.

"Any violation of NCAA rules is unacceptable and Notre Dame Athletics takes full responsibility for its actions in this regard," Notre Dame athletic director Jack Swarbrick said in a statement. "While we made clear to the NCAA our view that the agreed-upon penalties exceeded the nature of the infractions, we accept the final outcome of the case. In addition, the assistant coach involved is no longer employed by the university."

Head coach Brian Kelly also was found to have had impermissible off-campus contact with a prospect when he had his picture taken with the prospect at his high school.

The NCAA described the former assistant's violations as Level II, which are considered significant but not the most egregious in the four-level penalty structure. Kelly's violation was characterized as Level III.

The number of official recruiting visits Notre Dame can host in 2020-21 will be reduced by one, from 56 to 55, and there will be 14 days when prospects won't be allowed to make unofficial visits. The Irish also will impose a seven-day off-campus recruiting ban for the entire staff this spring.

Probation started Thursday, and the school also will pay a $5,000 fine.

The unidentified assistant, if hired by another school, must serve a one-game suspension and be suspended from all recruiting activity during the next available recruiting period. Under a six-month, show-cause order, the former assistant's new school would have to explain to the satisfaction of the Committee on Infractions why the former assistant shouldn't be subjected to those penalties.

White Sox's Anderson lands video game cover; next up, a ring?

By ANDREW SELIGMAN
Associated Press

CHICAGO — White Sox star Tim Anderson has landed a spot on the cover of a video game. He wants a World Series ring to go with it.

Anderson sees no reason why the White Sox can't win it all after loading up on the heels of a breakthrough playoff season.

ANDERSON

"Anything's possible," he said. "That's always been the goal, to win the World Series, right? Never gonna shy away from that. ... I know what we can do."

Anderson spoke Thursday, hours after Major League Baseball announced he is the cover athlete for "RBI Baseball 21." The dynamic shortstop is the first White Sox player to be on the cover of the video game series, with the latest edition due out in March. It's more attention for a franchise opening eyes after being overlooked even in its own city.

"To get to this spot definitely shows that we've been working," he said. "I think all the work is showing – how hard we've worked behind the scenes and not just what you guys see. I'm definitely happy with the position we're in. We're in the right spot."

Anderson seems like a perfect fit for the cover, with his fun-loving attitude and big bat flips. He finished second in the American League with a .322 batting average last season after leading the majors at .335 in 2019. Along with AL MVP Jose Abreu, he anchors a deep lineup.

The White Sox made the playoffs last year for the first time since 2008 and ended a string of seven losing seasons. They tied Cleveland for second place in the AL Central behind Minnesota at 35-25.

The White Sox now have their sights set on their first World Series championship since 2005.

"We added some pieces that we needed," Anderson said. "I think all those pieces are gonna help us. I don't really think it's about spending a whole lot of money. I think it's just doing what makes sense and getting pieces in there to really help us. They've really been making the right moves to kind of get to where we're trying to go."

The White Sox added one of the game's best closers when they finalized a $54 million contract with Liam Hendriks last week.

The White Sox have also hired Hall of Fame manager Tony La Russa to replace Rick Renteria. They acquired Lance Lynn in a trade with Texas, giving them a durable starter to go with ace Lucas Giolito and 2015 AL Cy Young Award winner Dallas Keuchel. And they brought back veteran outfielder Adam Eaton, who helped the Washington Nationals win a championship in 2019.

Lift away the hard times

Lions introduce emotionally charged coach Dan Campbell

By LARRY LAGE
Associated Press

"This team is going to be built on, we're going to kick you in the teeth. When you punch us back, we're going to smile at you. And when you knock us down, we're going to get up and on the way up, we're going to bite a kneecap off."

DAN CAMPBELL
New Detroit Lions head coach

Dan Campbell is empathic about the hard times people have had in Detroit, in their lives and as fans of the Lions.

And, the new coach of the long-suffering franchise is fired up for an opportunity to help the NFL team and people in the Motor City.

"We need to bring some hope back into this place," Campbell said Thursday, a day after he signed a six-year contract with the Lions and general manger Brad Holmes was formally introduced.

Despair, though, is a commonly shared emotion for followers of a franchise with 13 double-digit loss seasons since 2001 and only one playoff victory since winning the NFL title in 1957.

The 44-year-old Campbell is the latest coach to try to change the conversation about the lowly Lions.

The former New Orleans Saints tight ends and assistant head coach has 11 years of experience in the NFL as a coach and 11 as a player with the New York Giants, Dallas, Detroit and New Orleans. In 2015, he was 5-7 as interim coach of the Miami Dolphins after taking over a 1-3 team.

Campbell knows the Lions' woeful history all too well because he played for the team for three seasons, including in 2008 when he had an injury early in the league's first 0-16 season.

He's the first former player to lead the franchise since Hall of Famer and two-time NFL champion Joe Schmidt was Detroit's coach from 1967-72.

"I wanted this job – bad – because I felt like I know this community, I played here," Campbell said in a emotionally charged opening statement that lasted about 19 minutes at his virtual news conference. "This place has been kicked, it's been battered, it's been bruised.

"I could give you coach-speak all day long. I could give you, 'Hey, we're going to win this many games.' None of that matters and you guys don't want to hear it anyway. You've had enough of that."

Campbell went on to say some sensational things as he described how the team will take on Detroit's identity.

"This city's been down and it found a way to get up and it has found a way to overcome adversity," he said. "This team is going to be built on, we're going to kick you in the teeth. When you punch us back, we're going to smile at you. And when you knock us down, we're going to get up and on the way up, we're going to bite a kneecap off."

The Lions hired Campbell after interviewing Arthur Smith, Robert Saleh, Marvin Lewis, Eric Bieniemy and Darrell Bevell, who closed the season as interim coach. Smith was hired by the Atlanta Falcons while the New York Jets signed Saleh.

"During our general manager interviews, we were asking each candidate to name head coaches that they would consider part of their list if they were to make a choice," team president Rod Wood said. "Dan showed up on numerous lists."

Nearly three months ago, the Lions began searching for a general manger and coach after team owner Sheila Ford Hamp fired Bob Quinn and Matt Patricia. Patricia was 13-29-1 in two-plus seasons as a first-time NFL head coach.

Even though it appeared to be clear that Campbell was the choice well before Holmes was hired, Wood insisted the new general manager was on board with the decision.

"It may have been an odd process, but I think it resulted in an outstanding result," Wood said.

Detroit did make Holmes one of just four Black general managers in the NFL, but the franchise followed a league-wide trend of hiring white head coaches.

Rod Graves, executive director of the Fritz Pollard Alliance, which champions diversity in the NFL, called the disparity in opportunities "mind-boggling," when there are many successful Black coordinators in the NFL.

"You're looking for the best candidates or the best fit for your organization and I think everyone goes in colorblind – honestly," Hamp said. "I do think the league, and I think everyone's aware, can do a better job of creating a pipeline and teaching, developing and working with diverse candidates."

Hillmon's 50-point performance not enough for No. 11 Michigan women in Ohio St. loss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jacy Sheldon scored 20 points, including a 3-pointer and two free throws in the final 48 seconds, and No. 17 Ohio State beat No. 11 Michigan 81-77 on Thursday, spoiling Naz Hillmon's 50-point, 16-rebound performance.

Hillmon broke Michigan's program scoring record – for men's or women's – by making 20 of 30 field goals and 10 of 14 free throws to reach the half-century mark. It was the highest scoring output this season in Division 1, and the first 50-point game in the Big Ten since Rachel Banham's 52 for Minnesota on Feb. 21, 2016.

But it wasn't enough to overcome Michigan's 16-point, third-quarter deficit.

Michigan started the fourth on a 17-3 run to take a 71-69 lead as the Buckeyes missed their first eight shots from the field. Tanaya Beacham's layup with 1:58 left was Ohio State's first make of the fourth, tying it at 73.

Hillmon converted a three-point play with 11.7 seconds left to pull Michigan within 78-77, and Ohio State's Braxtin Miller made 1 of 2 free throws at the other end to give the Wolverines another chance. But Michigan turned it over on an inbounds pass and Sheldon sealed it at the free-throw line with two makes.

Hillmon, whose previous best scoring game was 35 points, broke the Michigan women's scoring record that has stood since Diane Dietz had 45 against Illinois on Feb. 27, 1982. Hillmon also broke Dietz's field goal record of 17 set in the same game. Michigan's scoring record on the men's side is 48 points set by Rudy Tomjanovich and Cazzie Russell – both in the 1960s.

Ohio State (8-1, 4-1 Big Ten) had five starters finish with double-figure scoring. Madison Greene added 15 points, Dorka Juhasz had 14 points and seven rebounds, and Beacham and Miller each scored 10. Aaliyah Patty, averaging 11.9 points and 6.8 rebounds, did not play due to a shoulder injury.

Akienreh Johnson added 14 points, six rebounds and five assists for Michigan (10-1, 5-1), which is scheduled to play Purdue on Sunday.

Harbaugh adds Linguist, Helow to defensive staff

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Michigan coach Jim Harbaugh has hired Maurice Linguist and George Helow to be assistants on defense, the latest moves that have reshaped his coaching staff.

Harbaugh announced the additions Wednesday night, adding that defensive line coach Shaun Nua has agreed on a contract extension and confirming Brian Jean-Mary will return to coach linebackers.

Harbaugh hired Baltimore Ravens linebacker coach Mike Macdonald as defensive coordinator on Sunday, replacing Don Brown, who is now defensive coordinator for the Arizona Wildcats. Macdonald worked for Harbaugh's brother, John, with the Ravens.

Linguist was the Dallas Cowboys' defensive backs coach last season after coaching defensive backs at Texas A&M, Minnesota and Mississippi State. Helow worked at Maryland last year as its special teams coordinator and inside linebackers coach after he was on the defensive staff at Colorado State.

Last week, the Wolverines hired former running back Mike Hart to be their running back mentor. Hart was the running backs coach at Indiana for the past four seasons. Harbaugh did not retain cornerbacks coach Mike Zordich, who identifies himself as a free agent DB coach on Twitter.

Harbaugh finalized a new, five-year contract earlier this month to avoid 2021 being the final season of his deal.

Magnesium is an essential mineral, may help with RLS

Elizabeth Ko & Eve Glazier
Ask the Doctors

Hello, again, dear readers. We're back with the second of our two bonus letters columns. Let's dive right in.

■ After a column that referenced magnesium, we heard from a reader from Deltaville, Virginia, whose wife had been diagnosed with very low levels of the essential mineral. "What actually causes low magnesium levels?" he asked. "What can be done about it other than the four-hour infusion sessions she is going through?" Magnesium plays a role in hundreds of chemical reactions throughout the body and is crucial to heart, muscle, nerve and kidney function. Low levels arise from poor absorption, or excessive excretion, of the nutrient. Conditions such as chronic diarrhea; kidney disorders; and high levels of certain hormones, including thyroid hormones, can all increase magnesium excretion. So can the overuse of certain types of antacids. People with gastrointestinal issues, such as celiac disease or Crohn's disease, are often unable to adequately absorb magnesium. Some medications can also interfere with absorption. Infusions are used when deficiencies are quite severe. As levels stabilize, a switch to oral magnesium supplements may be adequate.

■ Speaking of magnesium, a reader from Rye Beach, New Hampshire, wrote in response to a column about restless leg syndrome, or RLS, a condition that causes an irresistible urge to move the legs. "Please suggest a simple and inexpensive mineral that's important to the whole body – magnesium," she wrote. Although it doesn't work for everyone, some people with RLS do find that increasing magnesium in the diet can help ease symptoms. As with all supplements, check with your health care provider for guidance. Taken in large amounts, magnesium supplements can be unsafe and can lead to side effects such as heart arrhythmias, low blood pressure and impaired breathing.

■ In response to a column about persistent hiccups that last for weeks, or even months, a reader from Spokane Valley, Washington, shared an unexpected avenue of relief. "My mother had those hiccups," she wrote. "A friend of the family suggested she go to a chiropractor. She did, and the hiccups went away and never came back." Persistent hiccups, while rare, interfere with quality of life. We aren't aware of any studies that back up a chiropractic approach to dealing with hiccups. However, there is anecdotal evidence from patients who say that visiting a licensed chiropractor has offered relief.

-- A reader from Fresno, California, asked for help with compression stockings. "I'm 89 years old, have poor circulation and am allergic to compression stockings," she wrote. "I walk a mile every day, and the stockings would be helpful." It's possible that you're allergic to latex, which gives many brands of compression stockings their stretch. The good news is that some brands of compression stockings are latex-free. We think it would be a good idea to give them a try and see if you have better results. Meanwhile, congratulations on your impressive fitness regimen – you're an example to us all.

Thank you to everyone who writes to us. We look forward to hearing from more of you, and will be back with our regular letters column next month.

Friend's husband is cheating again – should she tell?

Carolyn Hax

DEAR CAROLYN: I work with a close friend's husband and am friends with both of them, though the wife has been my go-to adviser.

Her husband has cheated on her before, and I spent countless hours talking to her about this, encouraging a second chance for him and stressing how much she had to lose if she chose to divorce. (There were young kids involved at the time.) This was undoubtedly colored by my own painful experience with divorce.

From what I've witnessed and heard at work, the husband is cheating again. I want to tell the wife but it's not my place. I'm mad as hell at the husband, especially since I championed his cause previously. I feel responsible to the wife for my previous encouragement to stay and work things out.

I am not sure what if anything I can do. – Friend

DEAR FRIEND: You can learn from hard experience.

You got too involved last time. You obviously meant well and care deeply for this couple – but you also took a firm position on what the wife needed based on your own experience, instead of listening to her and letting her needs and circumstances determine the best course of action for her. You had your thumb on the scale.

You recognize that now – which is good, and important.

So apply it. You have not been forced into the middle here – you don't have direct knowledge of the husband's actions and no one has asked your opinion – so stay right where you are: out of it.

If he's cheating, if the wife finds out, and if she asks what you know, then you tell the truth – that you had your suspicions but none founded enough to speak up, and would not risk her marriage or anyone's on a hunch.

Things get acutely difficult if you ever do acquire that direct knowledge, because that puts two important realities – that withholding information from friends about their lives makes you a liar of omission, and that other people's marriages are none of your business – in direct conflict.

When that happens, your only viable option is to try to anticipate what your friend would want. As I said – so difficult. One person's idea of friendship is to have friends who get involved, and another's is to have friends who know not to.

But if that happens, this is a riddle old enough to have an established set of line-walking steps: 1. Tell the husband what you know and why you're furious at him for it;

2. Tell him he has [a window of time] to fix this himself before you act for him; 3. If he fails, then tell the wife she needs to talk to her husband. Your goal is for him to be the messenger.

My favorite step: 4. Hope fiercely that your friends don't project their beefs with each other onto you, since you're so very conveniently placed for that. And much easier to resent than each other.

Runner-up: 5. Give your friendship with the husband a hard look. We are all works in progress, but if he's doing what you think he's doing, then he's also opting not to progress.

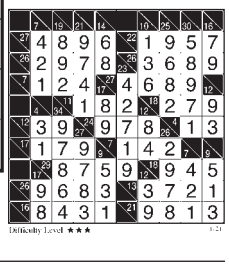
How to play: Numbers above the slash are across clues; numbers below the slash are down clues. The goal is to enter digits 1-9 in the white cells to add up to the number clues. You cannot use any digit more than once when adding up to a clue.



BRIDGE

I was hunting for a quotation including the word "fit" when I came upon one from Shannon L. Alder, so how could I not use it? The inspirational author wrote: "Being a good person doesn't mean you fit the life of every person you meet."

That is so true, but if at the bridge table you have a good fit with your partner, tell him. Even better, try to reveal a double fit. In today's deal, what do you think of the auction? What is the par contract, the one where if either pair bids higher, it will do worse?

The auction started predictably, but I like a four-club fit-jump with the North hand, showing long clubs and four or more spades. Yes, that makes it easy for East to bid four of a red suit, but it will allow South to judge better later in the auction.

After East competes with five diamonds, if South knows that North has clubs, bidding five spades will be clear-cut. The drawback, of course, is that if you advertise a double fit, the opponents will know that they have one also and will bid higher.

How did the play go in five spades?

West led the heart ace, under which East played the four as a suit-preference signal for clubs. This surprised West, but, trusting her partner, she shifted to a club. East ruffed and returned a diamond. West gave her partner a second club ruff for down two.

How does West do in diamonds? She makes all 13 tricks unless North leads a spade; then West takes 11 tricks.

The par contract is six clubs doubled, going down one.

Biden signs burst of virus orders, vows 'Help is on the way'

By RICARDO ALONSO-ZALDIVAR and ZEKE MILLER
Associated Press

Alex Brandon / AP

President Joe Biden signs executive orders after speaking about the coronavirus, accompanied by Vice President Kamala Harris, left, and Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, right, in the State Dinning Room of the White House, Thursday in Washington.

WASHINGTON — With a burst of executive orders, President Joe Biden served notice Thursday that America's war on COVID-19 is under new command, promising an anxious nation progress to reduce infections and lift the siege it has endured for nearly a year.

At the same time, he tried to manage expectations in his second day in office, saying despite the best intentions "we're going to face setbacks." He brushed off a reporter's question on whether his goal of 100 million coronavirus shots in 100 days should be more ambitious, a point pressed by some public health experts.

The 10 orders signed by Biden are aimed at jump starting his national COVID-19 strategy to increase vaccinations and testing, lay the groundwork for reopening schools and businesses, and immediately increase the use of masks – including a requirement that Americans mask up for travel. One directive calls for addressing health care inequities in minority communities hard hit by the virus.

"We didn't get into this mess overnight, and it will take months to turn this around," Biden said at the White House. U.S. deaths have have surged past 400,000, and he noted projections that they could reach 500,000 in a month.

But then, looking directly into the TV camera, Biden declared: "To a nation waiting for action, let me be clear on this point: Help is on the way."

The new president has vowed to take far more aggressive measures to contain the virus than his predecessor, starting with stringent adherence to public health guidance. A key difference is that under Biden, the federal government is assuming full responsibility for the COVID response. And instead of delegating major tasks to states, he is offering to help them with technical backup and federal money.

He faces steep obstacles, with the virus actively spreading in most states, vaccine shortages, slow progress on distribution and political uncertainty over whether congressional Republicans will help him pass a $1.9 trillion economic relief and COVID response package.

Adding to the challenges are virus mutations, particularly one that has emerged in South Africa, that may make vaccines somewhat less effective. Dr. Anthony Fauci told reporters at the White House briefing that "we are paying very close attention to it." Biden's plan includes an expansion of research capabilities to map out the genetic structure of new variants.

On Thursday a group influential with Republican office holders lent its support to the president's strategy. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce said, "We support the new administration's focus on removing roadblocks to vaccinations and reopening schools, both of which are important steps to accelerating a broad-based economic recovery for all Americans."

Biden officials have said they've been hampered by a lack of cooperation from the Trump administration during the transition. They say they don't have a complete understanding of their predecessors' actions on vaccine distribution. And they face a litany of complaints from states that say they are not getting enough vaccine even as they are being asked to vaccinate more categories of people.

Plea deal likely in alleged plot to kidnap Michigan governor

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — One of six men accused of conspiring to kidnap Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer is returning to court next week for a possible plea deal with prosecutors.

Ty Garbin is scheduled for a change-of-plea hearing Wednesday, according to a notice filed by U.S. District Judge Robert Jonker.

Messages seeking comment from Garbin's attorneys weren't immediately returned Thursday. Prosecutors declined to comment.

The FBI in October said it broke up a plot to kidnap Whitmer by anti-government extremists upset over her coronavirus restrictions. Six people were charged in federal court in Grand Rapids while eight others were charged in state court with aiding the alleged scheme.

Attorney Mark Satawa has said Garbin had no intention to carry out a kidnapping, no matter what he might have said in recorded or online conversations. A "big talk" defense had emerged last fall as a strategy for the six men.

individuals should anticipate that it may be several weeks before they receive notification of appointment availability.

People are encouraged to assist their family and friends with the online pre-registration process, particularly those over the age of 65 who may be without internet access or email.

BCHD and Lakeland officials will give a COVID-19 update at 11:30 a.m. today via Facebook Live on the health department's Facebook page, @bchdmi.

For more information about COVID-19 and vaccine distribution in Berrien County, visit bchdmi.org/COVID19 or call the BCHD COVID hotline at 1-800-815-5485.

Data update

Berrien County recorded three additional COVID-19 deaths on Thursday, bringing the county's death toll to 190.

All the deaths were people over the age of 60.

In addition, the county recorded 53 new cases of COVID-19, along with 43 recoveries.

With recoveries slowing some, the county is at about 1,390 active cases, which is down from just 1,422 last Thursday. That's still down from the Thursday before, when the county was at about 1,687 active cases.

COVID hospitalizations at Spectrum Health Lakeland dropped to 29 Thursday morning. That's the first time an inpatient count in the 20s has been reported since October. Last Thursday, the hospital reported having 40 COVID patients admitted.

Van Buren County recorded an additional COVID-19 death on Thursday, brining the county's death toll to 81. No new deaths were recorded in Cass County.

In addition on Thursday, Van Buren County recorded 15 new COVID-19 cases and Cass County recorded nine.

Rite Aid expands testing

Rite Aid, which offers free COVID-19 testing at drive-thru pharmacy locations, announced Thursday that it will now allow children ages 4 and older to get tested starting today.

The Rite Aid locations in Bridgman, Hartford and Niles all offer COVID-19 testing.

The testing sites will continue to utilize self-swab nasal tests overseen by Rite Aid pharmacists, and all individuals are required to pre-register online at www.riteaid.com to schedule a time-slot for testing.

OBITUARIES

Death notices

Diana Lynn Eaton, 69, of Hartford died Jan. 20, 2021, at home. Calvin-Leonard Funeral Home, Hartford, 621-4101.

Joan Ferrell, 80, of Newberry, Mich., died Jan. 20, 2021, at home. Beaulieu Funeral Home, Newberry, Mich., 906-293-8651.

Denise James, 55, of Benton Harbor died Jan. 8, 2021. Robbins Brothers Funeral Home, Benton Harbor, 927-3181.

Joan Ferrell

June 12, 1940 – Jan. 20, 2021

Joan Antoinette Ferrell (Furlan), 80, of Newberry, Mich., was called home by her Lord on Jan. 20, 2021, when she passed away peacefully at home with her loving husband Rick by her side.

Joanie was born June 12, 1940, to Charles J. and Alma E. Furlan in Hartford. Along with her husband of 42 years, she is survived by her brother, Charles J. Furlan Jr., (Renee) of Hartford; and her three children: Richard (Lisa), Victoria (Michael), and Matthew (Lynn). She had seven wonderful grandchildren: Leland, Brooklyn, Reese, Emma, Joseph, Max and Abbey. She also had two adorable great-grandsons: Oliver Thomas and Miles Henry; all will miss her deeply.

She grew up in Benton Harbor, and was a 1958 graduate of Benton Harbor High School. Joan had a long career with Michigan Bell, starting in her teens as a switchboard operator and retiring as a business manager. She enjoyed reading, cooking for her family, spending time outdoors, creating and caring for her flower garden, and building doll houses.

Joanie battled inoperable stage 4 lung cancer since March 2018. She had an unbelievable support team from the Helen Newberry Joy Hospital in Newberry. Daniel Netherton, PA-C, Angie Fossitt, LPN, and Steve Vix, MD provided both her and Rick with exemplary care and compassion. The oncology staff at Munson Cowell Family Cancer Center in Traverse City also provided unequaled knowledge, planning and treatment to help Joanie fight with all she had for almost three years.

She had many close friends and family members who provided her with unceasing prayers, encouragement and comfort during her struggle. She was so very grateful to all of them.

A memorial service for family and friends will take place at a later date. Beaulieu Funeral Home in Newberry, is assisting the family at this time.

Condolences may be expressed at www.beaulieufuneralhome.com. In lieu of flowers, a donation can be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

Denise James

Aug. 24, 1965 – Jan. 8, 2021

Denise James, 55, fulfilled her earthly duties and departed this life on Jan. 8, 2021, at Lakeland Medical Center, St. Joseph, after battling a short illness. A visitation will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Jan. 22 at Robbins Brothers Funeral Home, Benton Harbor. Those wishing to sign the guest book online may do so at www.robbinsbrothersfh.com.

Denise was born to Charles and Earnestine Broyles Sr., on Aug. 24, 1965. She attended BHAS and was a proud graduate of class of 1983. She was a TRUE TIGER.

Denise was a faithful member of the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, humbly serving until her untimely death.

She enjoyed serving her community through Sister's from Another Mother. Denise loved all her co-workers and friends at the BHAS' First Student transportation department where she worked for over 30 years.

Denise enjoyed traveling and spending time with family and friends. Her smile and laughter will truly be missed.

Denise leaves to cherish her memories her father, and mother; husband, Louis James; daughters: Erica Broyles and Taneika Payne; sons: Devon Buchanan, Joshua and Louis James Jr.; sisters: Evelyn and Regina Broyles; brothers: Bazzon and Charles Broyles Jr.; sisters-in-law: Robin (Michael) Tisdel, and Rose (Holden) James; brothers-in-law: Lee James Jr., and Richard (Penny) James; favorite cousin, Wilhelmina Broyles; special aunt, Arlene Sisson; eight grandchildren; and a host of nieces, nephews, family and friends.

Denise is preceded in death by her grandparents; several aunts; uncles; her mother; father-in-law; and brother-in-law, Rinex James.

HOROSCOPE

By EUGENIA LAST

FRIDAY, JANUARY 22

Control your emotions. Channel your energy into something creative, meaningful and mindful. How you reach out to others will determine what you receive in return. Use your intelligence, skills and resourcefulness to gain support and achieve success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Refuse to let anyone control what you can do. Gather information, and make a move only if you feel it will benefit you. Helping others is admirable, but not when it's at your expense.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be a good listener, but don't share personal secrets or get involved in gossip. Review your accomplishments, and consider what's in your best interest as you move forward.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your enthusiasm will attract attention, but it will attract those who want to exploit your energy to get ahead. Don't do something for others without receiving what you want in return.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Check the facts before you pass along information. An exaggerated version of a situation will make you look bad. You can be creative and attract attention without being misleading.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Live and learn. Learn something new. Don't let a change someone makes or a problem with an institution throw you off guard. Utilize your time and money carefully.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Work with people you know will come through for you. A partnership based on equality will help you overcome any situation you face. Follow your heart and instincts. Romance will enhance your life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Refuse to let anyone cause instability in your life. Get along with your peers, but don't share personal information that could be used against you. Stick to what and who you know and trust.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Enjoy the company of those with whom you share common goals. You will learn much and contribute much, as well. Keep an open mind, but don't lose sight of your ultimate goals. Romance is featured.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep your money and possessions in a safe place. Don't share financial information or leave your passwords on display. Be smart when dealing with someone close to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A partnership will experience difficulties. Hesitation will be an indication of uncertainty regarding whether you are heading in the same direction. Personal growth and romance are favored.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conversations will lead to emotional fallout. Think before you speak, and question what's said before you react. An exaggerated opinion will lead to assumptions and premature judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Use your charm to entice others to do things your way. You'll gain support if you do something nice for a friend, relative or colleague. A change at home will pay off. Romance is featured.

1996 – 25 years ago

U.S. Jack Co., of Benton Township, which derives 75 percent of its business from Uncle Sam received a $1 million contract to furnish 21,400 hydraulic and mechanical hand jacks to the government's General Services Administration. The two-year contract will result in more work for the company's suppliers in Southwest Michigan and the Midwest. U.S. Jack is the largest producer of American-made hand jacks and one of only two such producers in the country.

Increases in the number of class hours students must be in school and in the number credits necessary to graduate from New Buffalo High School were approved Monday night by the school board. Under the revised policy, students will be required to attend six daily class periods, with only one period scheduled for work study. An increase in the number of required subjects also was approved. Students will be required to take an additional math and science classes in 10th grade and participate in semester programs of computers and speech. The number of required classes will increase from 10 to 13. According to Superintendent Elmer Gough, about half of the senior students are attending school less than a full day.

Memorial Hospital in St. Joseph has added a respiration unit that literally breathes for the patient – it's so sensitive it can even sigh for him – and be used over a long period. William Wood, a therapist with the hospital, announced the addition to the Inhalation Therapy Department. He said the department is now equipped to carry out a full range of inhalation therapy diagnostic and therapeutic techniques. The intake, expiration and depth of breathing can be precisely regulated. He said the percentage of oxygen and room air also can be regulated.

will stay good for several years.

A long journey

The carriage house in which Camp runs her business had to be completely cleaned out and renovated. The process has taken four years.

To get the place up to food-grade, where it could be licensed, she had to think of things like blasting the walls with dry ice to sanitize it.

In addition, the whole foundation of the building had to be replaced, due to the weight of the cider barrels.

"It took forever; all done by hand," she said. "Then COVID hit."

That delayed things even further with contractors not being able to work for a while, then becoming busy with other projects because people were at home.

Another one of those delays along the way was that Camp was transitioning from male to female, forcing her to change paperwork and get the business in order under her new name.

"It's the best thing I've ever done in my life," she said. "I think too often, whether someone is transgender, or gay, or just a person who is afraid to cross the cultural norms of society, there's a hesitancy. I hesitated for 65 years."

Paula Camp will soon open Carriage House Ciders at the 1887 carriage house at her home in Benton Township.

Camp said coming out as transgender has been a five-year journey.

"For me it's been a benefit. I am certain, I will do a better job of managing this cider business because I am being myself," she said. "I would encourage others to figure out who they really are."

Coming out helped with angry and lost feelings Camp had.

"My health is better. I'm healthier than I was five years ago. I'm grateful for that," she said.

Camp has had her fair share of misgendering since, even with contractors she hired to help with the carriage house.

"I spent my entire life afraid of what people would think and I don't care anymore. Think of me what you will," Camp said.

On top of transitioning, renovating a building and starting a business, Camp is enrolled in the wine and viticulture program at Lake Michigan College, with two semesters left.

"I wanted to know more about the science of what I'm doing and apply it to the business," she said. "I've learned a lot. I'm certain I make better cider now because of it."

The future

Plans for a tasting room in the carriage house were put on hold due to logistical hoops, so the cider will just be sold online at first. Camp said she plans to announce the first batch of cider flavors yet this month.

Camp said the Carriage House Ciders website, chciders.com, is a bit outdated, but will soon be updated.

Once they've got the swing of things, Camp said she hopes to open a tasting room off site, or perhaps hold outside events on the property.

There are also plans to offer cider-making experiences, so folks can come make their own cider for weddings, anniversaries or other events.

She also plans to do fundraisers that will allow folks to help support an LGBT center of their choice or the OutCenter of Southwest Michigan.

"We hope to do some good," Camp said. "And create an inclusive environment where anyone in our community can feel comfortable here."

Camp said she is so grateful to all the people who made this project possible, including her life partner, Mary Conners; her neighbor, Jerry Crune; and many other friends and family.

"Most of my adult life, I never asked for help. Today, I know I needed help – badly," she said. "It's amazing what can happen when you set your ego aside."

Through the process, Camp said she has learned she doesn't know what she doesn't know, and that's where listening to others has helped.

"I'm still a novice. I'm learning from the cider. The cider really makes itself. You just have to let it," she said.

Camp said while there are many good female cider makers and cidery owners in the U.S., she's fairly confident that she is the first transgender woman to do so.

"Part of my goal for the cidery is to represent our community positively, to show that transgender persons can successfully launch a business," Camp said.

MEETING

to the Record-Eagle. "They were probably the most respected folks that got up and talked (at the March meeting). They were decent guys and they treated us with respect."

According to the Southern Poverty Law Center and Anti-Defamation League, the Proud Boys are a far-right, hate group with ties to islamophobia, anti-immigration attitudes, misogyny and white supremacy. However, the group has denied any connection to the racist "alt-right."

MacIntosh said to the Record-Eagle that she felt threatened when she saw Clous' gun.

During the meeting, MacIntosh spoke about her issues with a March 4 meeting where Grand Traverse County voted to protect the Second Amendment and to "oppose any enforcement or funding measures that would infringe on gun owners' rights," according to the Traverse Ticker.

"It's really hard to tell the difference between the Proud Boys and the message they want through our state, (and) how that's different from what happened in Washington," MacIntosh said during the meeting. "I mean welcoming such a group and having that message go out has changed the environment in northern Michigan from a hunting culture to that of a gun culture."

Hentschel said he had no problem with Clous holding a gun during the meeting, he said to the Record-Eagle.

"I am not a member of Proud Boys," Hentschel said during the meeting. "But I do know a few Proud Boys. I've met Black Proud Boys, I've met multi-racial Puerto Rican Proud Boys and they inform me they also have gay Proud Boys. I don't see how that's a hate group."
